LONDON, THE UK AND THE WORLD

Uxbridge is perfectly placed on the edge of the so-called 'Golden Triangle' and between the South East's two major concentrations of science and learning: Oxford and London. Both are city-size ecosystems home to global giants in commercial innovation.

Two tube lines go direct to central London while the M40, which runs right past Uxbridge, is a vital transport artery connecting the major university cities of Oxford, Coventry and Birmingham.

Uxbridge is also only a short 7 mile journey from Heathrow Airport's arrival gate — one of Europe's busiest airports and the UK's gateway to world science and innovation.
